SENATE TO ASK SIMS ABOUT HIS SPEECH ON ERIN

Resolution Adopted Ordering Inquiry—Cork's Lord Mayor Found

NEW WHITE PAPER ISSUED

Britain Finds Proof Of Sinn Fein Attempt To Unite With Russia

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, June 9.—The Senate has adopted a resolution ordering an investigation into the speech delivered in London by Admiral Sims attacking the Sinn Fein propaganda carried on by Irish-Americans.

London, June 10.—Admiral Sims is quite unperturbed over the agitation caused in America by his recent utterance regarding Sinn Fein in America. In the course of an interview he declared emphatically that he stood by every word of the speech in question and would reply in these terms to Secretary Denby when he received the cable which was reported to have been sent. He declared further that he saw nothing "un-American" in his speech.

New York, June 9.—The New York Times declares that Admiral Sims' speech was improper. The Tribune says that while Admiral Sims' remarks were in bad taste he hit somewhere near the truth. It was time, this journal asserts for someone to say aloud that Sinn Fein hyphenism was un-American.

London, June 9.—A White Paper has been issued reproducing documents captured in Dublin, outlining a proposed commercial treaty between the Russian Bolshevik Republic and the Irish Republic for a period of ten years. The documents are accompanied by a memorandum from President de Valera, stamped "Dail Eireann, June 15, 1920, recommending the treaty to the consideration of the Republican Cabinet and that the terms should be designed as a lever to bring in portions of Ulster on the side of the Republic.

Washington, June 9.—The lawyers of Mr. Donall O'Callaghan, the Lord Mayor of Cork, who went to America to attend the meetings of the Committee of One Hundred and was ordered to be deported, have given information regarding Mr. O'Callaghan's whereabouts and plans to the Department of Labor, but in the interests of justice the Department regards this information as confidential.

Except for a single appearance in March last, Mr. O'Callaghan has completely disappeared since he landed.

Chinese In Borneo Protest Exclusive Grant To British

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—At question time in the House of Commons today, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Colonies, Major E. L. Wood, declared that the Government had received a petition signed by 300 Chinese merchants in North Borneo protesting against the fact that a British company had been granted the exclusive right to cut timber there. The Government, Major Wood added, had requested the British North Borneo Company to furnish a report on the subject and also a copy of the Company's reply to the Chinese petition.

Demand For Cloth Revives In China

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—Replying to Sir Walter de Frece in the House of Commons today, the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, declared that there was some evidence of a revival of the demand for Lancashire cotton goods in China. The ability of Chinese firms to take delivery of the goods they ordered was increasing and his opinion was that this improvement should continue.

BRITAIN TO KEEP OLD RATES FOR MAILS ABROAD

Sunday Post To Be Abolished As Economy Move

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—There is growing opposition to the increased postal charges, already mentioned, in connection with which there have been several deputations to Mr. F. G. Kellaway, the Postmaster General.

Discussing the Post Office estimates in the House of Commons, Mr. F. G. Kellaway announced that the Government would drop the proposed increase of the charges on newspapers and printed matter for abroad. The speaker said that the loss on the carriage of inland printed papers and postcards was £2,400,000, while it was estimated that the increased rates on both classes would produce an additional £2,000,000 and the whole increased charges would produce £2,500,000, while the remaining £1,000,000 of the deficit of £3,500,000 would be provided by the abolition of the Sunday post.

London, June 10.—In the House of Commons today, the Postmaster General, Mr. F. G. Kellaway, announced that the Government was establishing a Post Office Council, composed of prominent business men, with a view to ensuring the efficient management and development of the Post Office.

F. EASTERN REPUBLIC SENDS AN 'ULTIMATUM' TO JAPAN ON SIBERIAN AGGRESSION

(Dalta News Agency)

Peking, June 7.—The following is a letter addressed by Mr. A. F. Agareff, Acting Chairman of the Mission of the Far Eastern Republic in China, to Mr. Y. Obata, the Japanese Minister here, together with a note of Mr. I. L. Yourin, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Far Eastern Republic, to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Japan:

On May 21, 1921, the officers of the Russian militia at Vladivostok discovered a band of criminals who had arms stored in the house of a Japanese citizen. The militia officers were unable to arrest that criminal band in view of the forcible and wilful interference of the Japanese Gendarmes.

The Russian militia had at that time been reliably informed of an anti-government uprising being organised at Vladivostok. The Japanese Command, which was aware of these preparations, not only did not prevent the illegal arming of those criminal elements implicated in the preparations but, on the contrary, on May 26, the day of the uprising, surrounded the militia and the People's Defence Guard and required them to turn over their arms, while no measures have been taken against the outlaw bands.

Nor did the Japanese Command prevent the occupation of the government establishments by the agents of Semenoff who were set free by the Japanese Command. In short, the conduct of the Japanese Command at this time has not been different from its conduct on March 30, 1921, when an attempt at a coup in Vladivostok was made.

AIMED AT PEACE

Elected by the Constituent Assembly, the Government of the Far Eastern Republic fulfilling the will of the people, has tried to restore order over the entire territory of the Russian Far East and establish friendly relations with all other nations. The Government has adopted every measure to liquidate as early as possible the results of the disorder inherited by it from the bandits of Semenoff who have been condemned by the entire civilised world. Rising against the atrocities of the bands of the Atamans, the population of the Government of the Far Eastern Republic would have been peacefully guided in the matter of democratic reconstruction if it had not been for the constant interference of the Japanese Command, which enabled fleeing bands to take refuge in Chinese territory. The Japanese Command has also taken under its protection the bands of Saveleff at Grodekovo and has taken no steps to prevent the flogging of peaceful citizens by these bands or the commission of other forms of violence against the population.

At the same time the Japanese Command has hindered the work of the People's Assembly of the Maritime Province in the matter of liquidating the above bands.

It is unnecessary to explain and to prove how unfriendly and harmful is such behaviour on the part of the Japanese Command to the people of the Russian Far East. It is now well known to everybody, as I have been informed by one of the members of the American Mission now at Chita, that disorder in the Far Eastern Republic is evident only where there are Japanese troops, and where there are no Japanese troops one feels as safe as in America.

JAPANESE DUPLICITY

How much the Japanese Command is trying to maintain order in the Maritime Province can be judged from the fact that acting in the above manner the Japanese Command has itself violated the agreement of April 29, 1920 (which it forced upon the former Vladivostok Government), in spite of its repeated statements that it is strictly observing this agreement. The Government of the Far Eastern Republic wishes to know by which clause of the agreement of April 29, 1920, the Japanese Command had the right to disarm the Russian militia of the Maritime Province? The Government of the Far Eastern Republic can only explain it as utter confusion on the part of the Japanese Command when the bands which were under its protection tried to commit violence upon the peaceful population and to plunder the national property of the Far Eastern Republic. The Government of the Far Eastern Republic explains it by confusion of the Japanese Command for it cannot here admit an evil design, as such would be a crime and would stimatise the Japanese Government.

Is the Japanese Government unable authoritatively to put an end to such conduct of the Japanese Command in the Maritime Province?

The Government of the Far Eastern Republic will be forced to hold responsible the Japanese Government for the conduct of the Japanese Command, for it does not believe that the orders of the Imperial Government are ignored by the Japanese Command, nor can it admit that the latter is a power independent of the Government.

ASK FOR DECLARATION

Let the Japanese Government make an honest and frank statement before the world of its claims in the Russian Far East, as honest and frank as the statement of the people and Government of the Far Eastern Republic of their desire for peace at Home and with their neighbors and for the cessation of military intervention.

On behalf of the people of the Russian Far East we demand that Japan cease interference with our affairs. The Government of the Far Eastern Republic, on behalf of the entire people of the Russian Far East who elected it, requests of the Japanese people and the Imperial Government of Japan a straightforward and definite answer to each of the following questions:

1. Do the Japanese Government and the Japanese people consider just the constant interference of the Japanese Command with Rus-

Japan's Big Aim In East Is Peace, Says Count Uchida

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—A Japan number published by the Manchester Guardian by arrangement with the Japanese Government, contains a message from Count Uchida, Minister for Foreign Affairs, emphasising Japan's desire for peace and justice. He declares that no nation is more interested than Japan in a peaceful Siberia and a united and prosperous China. The ruling motive of Japan's policy in the Far East, he states, is to make her economic life secure, and peace in the Far East is a sine qua non for the attainment of this aim.

The formation of the Consortium, Count Uchida continues, has opened up new vistas of peace and prosperity in China, and of harmonious co-operation between the nations concerned. It only remains for China to awake to the significance of the new era, and to emerge from her factional feuds a united nation, strong and rejuvenated.

This number of the Manchester Guardian, which is an admirable production, also contains articles by eminent Japanese on Japan's progress industrially and socially, as well as reproductions of some of the masterpieces of modern Japanese art, and a message from the Prime Minister, Mr. Hara, emphasising the paramount importance, from the viewpoint of the world's peace, of personal intercourse between the British and Japanese, and a frank disclosure of the motives and intentions of both sides.

Hughes' Mexican Policy Endorsed

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 9.—The newspapers generally approve the way in which Secretary Hughes is handling the Mexican situation and emphasise the necessity for a regular treaty, although the democratic papers complain that the American-Mexican policy smells strongly of oil.

Despatches from Mexico quote a statement of General Obregon to the effect that the formal signature of the American-Mexican treaty as a condition for the recognition of his administration is impossible.

Washington, June 9.—It is expected that representations will be made to Mexico immediately regarding the increased petroleum tax.

Shanghai Hard To Leave If Your'e Leaving By Boat

BY ELSIE McCORMICK

GETTING away from Shanghai is a simple matter compared to leaving Sing Sing. The only difference is that after you do escape, they don't throw searchlights over the water to seek you out, or send guards to beat the bushes in the Public Gardens. But the preliminaries of departure make it about as much of a sinecure as the man had who dug his way out of involuntary seclusion with a tin spoon or other patient individuals who tried the effect of a pen-knife against iron bars.

When you finally steel yourself to the point of being willing to leave a land that averages two bank holidays a week, you go down to see about a sailing. No matter what line you came over on, faint, sickish memories of the way you felt when you first began to notice odors of cooking all over the ship seep through the subways of your imagination and make you resolve to try another boat. You remember, too, the way the fresh fish tasted about the eighteenth day out and the mild solution of white-wash they gave you with the porridge. The person who sat next to you on deck and described a major operation while you were making a heroic effort to gather yourself together for an appearance in the dining-room might also have something to do with your prejudice.

HELPFUL ADVICE

Anyway, you decide to try another line. But when you begin to gather statistics among friends about a desirable boat, other faint, sickish memories uncurl themselves and find vent in such remarks as: "Oh, don't take passage on her. We came over on that boat and everybody called her the Holy Roller." "Taking a sailing on the good ship Listerine, eh? Well I suppose it's all right if you don't mind living like a fly on a fifty degree list and having the soup in your lap every time the boat hits a ripple." "Say, that's a great scow. I paid a first-class price and they put me in a stateroom that said 'Second Class' right over the door." "Service? The only service I saw on that craft was when the missionaries got together in the saloon on Sundays."

You finally introduce a process of elimination and then work down to one boat that you didn't hear anything bad about because you didn't know anybody that ever sailed on her. When you intimate to the clerk that you are about to honor the line with your patronage, he seems strangely unimpressed. With a gesture as bored as that of a traffic policeman motioning a lady motorist to come on after she has stalled her engine, he flips open a book and runs his finger down a list of names longer than Abou Ben Adem's. After prolonged search he informs you that he can give you a nice little berth just under the galley some time in September. You burble something to the effect that if you stayed in Shanghai that long you wouldn't need a berth at all, as after the summer there would be so little left of you that you could be shipped by parcel post.

After further examination of Gabriel's roll-call or the New York telephone directory or whatever it is the personage behind the desk leans over on both elbows and tells you confidentially that there is a young lady who won't sail if a certain young man says the proper thing and that therefore there might be a cancellation.

THE COVETED NOTICE

A few days later, if you and the young lady are lucky, you receive a notice to the effect that you are to come down at once and part with a good share of your year's savings, in return for full privileges of mal de mer upon the boat in question. Over subsequent events, such as the securing of a passport and trying to pack 250 pounds of curios so that the customs man will take them for lingerie, we draw a veil—partly because of natural delicacy and partly because we may want to say something more about them later on.

Anyway, there is always the party that somebody gets up for you after all your evening clothes are locked in the godown, the long list of addresses given by people who want you to look up their cousin in Buffalo—you live in New York, so it's only twelve hours' journey away, and that last frantic shopping-tour which begins with two new papers of pins and ends with the luncheon set you promised Aunt Hettie a year ago. Then, just as you have sent all superfluous luggage to the tender, kind friends dash up and give you a fresh load in the shape of flower baskets, candy that you will give to the little girl in the next stateroom on the occasion of the first heavy swell, and a package of something that is going to make somebody at home less thirsty but that may incidentally land you in jail.

Getting on board a tender is an art in itself. On the way down you are likely to be nervous, especially if you, like most everybody else in town, have two sets of friends and are not at all anxious to have them run into each other. If you hear a young lady talking very rapidly and laughing in a high

GERMANS SIGN PACT TO DEVELOP RUSS TRADE

Hugo Stinnes And Krassin Come To Terms In Berlin

LENIN WILL HELP

Soviet Leader To Undertake Formation Of Coalition Government

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, June 9.—The Berliner Tageblatt states that certain German industrial interests have concluded agreements to develop the trade and exploit the resources of Russia, as the result of negotiations conducted by the Russian trade delegate, Krassin, when he was in Berlin recently, with the German industrial magnate, Herr Hugo Stinnes.

The journal adds that the reconstruction of Russia will be undertaken in close co-operation with Russian delegates, while Lenin will undertake to reconstruct the government on a coalition basis.

London, June 10.—A sharp rap on the knuckles has been administered by the British Foreign Office to the Soviet Government in consequence of a note from the Soviet Commissary for Foreign Affairs, M. Tchicherin, to the British, French and Italian Governments, making a series of charges against Japan.

The Soviet note declared that the overthrow of the Bolshevist Government at Vladivostok, and also the coups in Nikolsk-Ussurissk and elsewhere were carried out under the protection of the Japanese, against whom a number of other accusations were made, such as a desire to conquer Siberia, Japanese distribution to Japanese nationals of fishing rights in Kamtchatka and Japanese seizure of fishing dues which were formerly Russian.

The Soviet note further alleged that Ataman Semenoff's and General Kappel's bands were maintaining themselves on the Chinese borders, and the bands of Ungern terrorising Mongolia, with Japanese aid. Japan was accused of rejecting repeated Russian peace proposals.

The note said that the French were helping the Japanese plans, and that all the Entente Powers shared in the responsibility; it also accused Great Britain of hostile activity against Russia.

Lord Curzon's secretary briefly replied on June 8, through M. Krassin, returning the note as unacceptable, and saying that it was neither customary nor conducive to good relations for one Government, without adducing corroborative evidence, to address entirely baseless charges to another. The reply concluded that the British Government therefore declined to enter into any correspondence on the matter.

Britain Undecided On Near East Policy

(Reuter's Service)

Athens, June 9.—It is learned officially that the King will go to Smyrna on June 11, accompanied by the Crown Prince, the Premier and the Minister of War.

London, June 9.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Esmond Harmsworth (Kent, Isle of Thanet) called attention to the arrival of British warships at Constantinople and asked whether the Government intended actively to support King Constantine against the Kemalists.

Mr. Chamberlain replied that the warships were due at Constantinople on June 15 for a month's stay in accordance with the program of a cruise arranged at the end of April. He declared that the Government's policy was under consideration.

Replying to Commander Kenworthy, Mr. Chamberlain emphasised that this cruise was not a naval demonstration.

France To Halt Food Profiteers

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 4.—Following the energetic steps taken by the Government for the reduction of the cost of living all round, the Minister of Food now announces that any complaint by foreign visitors of overcharging by hotels or restaurants will receive the immediate attention of the authorities.

WUCHANG QUIET, LOOTERS SHOT BY TUCHUN'S TROOPS

Train On Which Soldiers Were Leaving With Booty Bombarded

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, June 10.—There has been no further sacking in Wuchang, and the city is now quiet, but the principal streets han been thoroughly wrecked and sacked. Seventeen hundred looters departed from Liukiamao yesterday, taking their loot with them.

The native city of Hankow and surrounding territory are garrisoned by other troops, under the Garrison Commissioner, and is at present thought to be safe. The troops have been placated with gifts of money and food.

Unconfirmed reports state that a train carrying the looters northwards has been held up by the Tuchun's orders at Sinyangchow, in Honan, where the soldiers were stripped of their booty by the local garrison. It is also reported that a trainload of looters has been held up at Siaokan, not far from here.

According to Chinese reports, the Tuchun is bringing up his own provincial troops by the Peking-Hankow Railway, and he has also appealed to General Wu Pei-fu for assistance.

No train arrived from the north today, and no tickets are being issued for the north.

Looters who landed here yesterday afternoon were deprived by the concession and native city police of large quantities of booty in the form of silver, jewellery and silk.

LOOTERS SHOT

Hankow, June 10.—A foreign eye witness who arrived at Hankow last night reports that the first of the trains bearing the troops who looted Wuchang was run on to a siding at Siaokan and bombarded with machine-guns by local troops. The troops from Wuchang were slaughtered in the open cars in which they were riding. A few who attempted to escape were pursued and shot down. Approximately 350 were killed. Some of the wounded, he said, were bayoneted and were lying in heaps on the railway side. Some were being buried in trenches.

The troops from Wuchang evidently carried loot, of which they were stripped. Other trains bearing the Wuchang soldiery were allowed to pass on as it was reported that they bore no loot. The city of Siaokan has not been molested but has been strictly closed and guarded against ingress and egress.

Wuchang and Hankow are at present quiet. One train from the North has arrived, the passengers to Chikungshan and points north of there suffering considerable inconvenience.

Fifteen thousand dollars, fifty nine shoes of silver, and three hundredweight of copper-cash, together with quantities of jewellery and silk have been taken from the looters in the British Concession. It is further reported that $200,000 has been recovered from them by the native police.

The dismissal of Wang Chuan yuan of Hupeh is asked by Hupeh residents in Peking following a mass meeting held upon the receipt of the news of the mutiny of his troops on Wednesday. Wang's report, however, attempted to minimise the gravity of the revolt by saying only a small portion of the disbanded troops was affected. No report was received from the Civil Governor, Liu Chen-en.

BLAMES ANFUITES

Wang attributes the mutiny to Anfuite propaganda among his troops. Chinese reports say that Wang Chuan-yuan fled Wuchang when the force mutinied and is still a refugee on one of the river gunboats.

The troops maintain that they had not been paid for several months and although a large sum of money was obtained by Wang from Peking on his recent trip he has not paid his soldiers.

The United States Minister, Mr. Charles R. Crane, on Thursday called on the Minister of Foreign Affairs and pointed out that Ichang had suffered two mutinies in six months, indicating that the military authorities were incapable of controlling their forces.

Peking, June 9.—Further reports from Ichang, received in Peking via Hankow, show that the looters did not enter the Japanese Consulate, but only the residence of the officials of the Consulate, from which they removed money and other portable personal belongings. The Chinese residents suffered far more severely from the looting than they did during the trouble last year, but at the time of the latest report it was impossible to make an accurate estimate of the damage. Reports from Chinese sources state that there were more than 1,000 casualties in the native city.

Smiles from the Mixed Court

Pau Ta-tsang, who lives on Kuling Road, is an early riser and at 4:30 the other morning he was already astir. Passing through the kitchen on his way to annoy the cook he heard a strange sound and paused to listen. Somebody was trying to manipulate the lock on the back door. Tiptoeing over he turned the key and jerked open the portal so suddenly that Tseu Ong-sung, who was crouching on the threshold, almost sprawled into the house.

Without a word of farewell Tseu bolted out of the alleyway, Pau streaming in his wake. A policeman who happened to be passing joined the chase. Tseu, who was beginning to lose ground, ducked into another alleyway. Choosing alleyways at random or on the spur of the moment is covered by the first "don't" in the Shanghai Association of Fugitives' rule book but Tseu must have mislaid his copy. Anyway, after he had rounded a couple of corners he found that somebody had built a tall brick house right smack across the right of way.

When Tseu came into court the Magistrate reminded him that this was his third visit and asked him if he didn't know that deportation from the Settlement meant that he was to stay permanently abroad. Tseu said he recalled having been in the Mixed Court before and realised that the Settlement was out of bounds for him, but he thought this was a case involving extenuating circumstances.

The entire Tseu family including three or four generations was sick, he said, and out of money. He couldn't borrow any outside of Shanghai as all his friends lived in the city and he had a particularly good friend named Shau Ah-ng who lived in an alleyway somewhere off Burkill Road and was of a trusting nature and always equipped with money. He wasn't sure of the house but he thought it might be the place which turned out to be Pau's and he was going in here to find out. As soon as he saw Pau he knew that it wasn't the right house and he went away but Pau and the policeman had followed and arrested him. Tseu assured the court that he had entirely reformed since his last appearance. He wasn't going to steal anything and he wasn't going to stay in the Settlement. The Court expressed doubt as to the first assertion and assured him that he was dead wrong as to the second—he was going to stay three months. After that he leaves us again.

ACCOUNT BALANCED

"Yes," narrated Sung Ah-san, employing, however, the Ningpo diction, "he picked up an extremely non-resiliant iron bar of several dimensions and larruped me across the skull with it.

Sung was speaking of Zee Ah-yi, who was occupying the prisoners' pew at the Mixed Court, and was alluding to an occurence at the Pau Pung Cotton Mill in Robison Road.

The Court asked Sung if he had any idea why Zee had put the crusher on his bean.

Sung thought maybe it might have been because he had just finished accusing Zee of stealing a pair of trousers. No, he had no proof.

The Court saw Zee's angle of the affair and told him to go home, Sung not being much damaged anyway.

WHAT'S THE USE?

This life is nothing but one disillusion after another. If you don't believe it ask Wong Ah-nyi.

Wong was going about the streets yesterday—this is the tale he told Desk Sergeant MacGregor—when a complete stranger stopped him and pressed into his hand a piece of paper. Wong inquired to know what the slip signified. The stranger replied that he had found the thing on the street and that it was a check for an amount of money, but this being Dragon Boat Festival day he was feeling benevolent and full of funds and he had made up his mind to pass it on to the first deserving person he met. It was negotiable at any bank.

Wong loped over to 4 Ningpo Road and eased the document through the grillwork. A bored looking clerk looked at it and handed it back. Wong expostulated and demanded monies. The clerk told Wong to wait, and while Wong was waiting the clerk came back with a Chinese police constable who got very familiar with the customer without any introduction. The constable insisted on Wong's visiting the Central police station.

Wong pushed the alleged check over to the Desk Sergeant. The Desk Sergeant looked the paper over and read the following:

"Yuen Yuen Loan
"Chang Yuen Loan
"Y. L. Chang.
"Shanghai Road
"Nanking Road
"Hankow Road
"Y. L. C.
"Chag Chang
"C. Chang Chang
"Chang Yui Loan

The Desk Sergeant reversed the paper. On the other side he found an accurate record of the last seven days in the month of January, 1920. The sheet had been torn from some obsolete calendar and was remarkably preserved.

"Get out of here," said the Desk Sergeant.

And Wong got.

Chinese Envoy On Way To Conference

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 9.—Replying to a communication from the Belgian Government, reminding the Chinese Government of the invitation to send a delegate to the Military Medical Conference, to be held in September at Brussels, the Chinese Government stated that Mr. Chuan Shou-ching, President of the Medical College of the Ministry of War, left for Europe six weeks ago as Chinese delegate to the Conference.

TUAN AT HAICHOW

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Shanghai Hard To Leave—By Boat

falsetto, you'll know that the three young men to whom she is more or less engaged have all come down to see her off and she is wondering if they will start comparing notes after the departure of the tender. Then there are the individuals who are scouting cautiously around the edge of the crowd and trying to get aboard unobserved by watchful shroffs with a handful of bad news. There is the husband who is going to have a six months' "business trip" at home and who is making an effort not to look too cheerful as he say goodbye.

GETTING ON THE JETTY

That regulation which forbids anyone except passengers and a few hundred others with sufficient pull from going down on the jetty is a wise provision for the departing ones, if they were only capable of appreciating it. One day while trying to convince a member of the police force that our admission to the jetty was a life and death matter, we saw at least seventeen people with packages refused access to the tender. As none of the packages looked like either candy or flowers, it meant that a corresponding number of travelers were saved the trouble of running an express service for people they never saw.

If one sails on a ship that has the plebian habit of snuggling up against the dock itself, there is nothing to hold friends back or to relieve that long period of waiting for the boat to get under way. Practically every ship is an hour late in starting, and under those circumstances, your departure is an anticlimax if your friends don't wait and a worse one if they do. There is nothing drearier in the world than waiting around after all the last goodbyes have been said and friends look as if they are remembering tea engagements but are afraid to make a direct break, while you are wondering if all that unguarded hand luggage in your cabin has walked out arm in arm with one of the wharf coolies.

But when the boat gets under way at last, you have a long, long sigh, wander wearily down the stairs, to your stateroom and then find that you have forgotten your camera and half a dozen umbrellas.

F. E. Republic Sends Ultimatum

ian affairs against the will of the Russian people of the Far East?

2. Will the Japanese Government continue to help the criminals and brigands of the bands of Semenoff, Ungern, etc., and put obstacles in the way of the authorities of the Far Eastern Republic in their struggle against those bandits?

3. Does the Japanese Govern-ment consider it necessary to establish friendly neighborly re-lations with the Government of the Far Eastern Republic?

4. Does the Japanese Govern-ment consider it necessary to pro-tect the interest of the Japanese merchants in the territory of the Far Eastern Republic in the only possible way, namely, to enter into a commercial treaty with the Gov-ernment of the Far Eastern Re-public?

5. Does the Japanese Govern-ment intend to withdraw from the territory of the Far Eastern Re-public its army of occupation, the presence of which in Russian ter-ritory, has been sufficiently proved during the last three years, has in no way helped to establish friend-ly relations nor to secure any privileges for Japanese residents, but on the contrary has been the source of a growing hatred toward Japan?

6. We hope that for the sake of a better understanding between the two people, the Japanese Gov-ernment will not delay to give straightforward and definite an-swers to all these questions.

FURTHER DEMANDS

The Government of the Far Eastern Republic is convinced that such a settlement of the matter will be to the benefit of the Japanese people. While welcoming the friendly settlement of all out-standing matters the Government of the Far Eastern Republic de-mands:

1. A definite statement of the Japanese Government and the Japanese Command that it will restrain from supporting the self-styled "Government" of Merkuloff at Vladivostok. The Government of the Far Eastern Republic is con-vinced that this adventure is doom-ed to failure.

2. The Japanese Command shall immediately return all arms to the Russian militia and the People's Defence Guard.

3. The Japanese Command shall not prevent the Government officials from arresting criminals and taking other necessary measures to restore order.

4. The Japanese Military Com-mand shall not put any obstacles in the way of the local authorities of the Far Eastern Republic nor of the district Emissary of the Government, Mr. Kozhevnikoff, the Assistant Minister of Foreign Affairs who has been ordered to proceed to Vladivostok, in restoring order and protecting the lives of the foreign citizens residing in the territory of the Far Eastern Re-public.

If the Japanese Government fails to give a straightforward and de-finite answer to the questions set forth by the people of the Russian Far East and if it refuses to comply with the lawful demands of the Russian people, the people of the Russian Far East and their Gov-ernment will not share the respon-sibility for continuation of the civil war and for the lack of order in the Maritime Province, placing the responsibility upon the Japanese Command because of their constant interference with the domestic affairs of the Far Eastern Republic, and the Government and people of Japan will be held accountable before the entire civilised world. We are firmly convinced that the Japanese Government will im-mediately discuss the abnormal conditions with the Government of the Far Eastern Republic and will in co-operation with it arrive at a decision satisfactory to both.

Ignatius L. Yourin
Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Far Eastern Republic.

Wood And Forbes Invited To China

Major General Leonard Wood and Governor Forbes, who are heading a commission of investi-gation into the preparedness of the Philippine Islands for inde-pendence, have been formally ex-tended an invitation to visit China after the consummation of their mission at Manila.

The Chinese consul general, Chow Kwo-hsien, called on them and laid before them the follow-ing invitation to visit China:

"We hope you will accept our government's invitation to visit China. As Chinese citizens we extend to you our warmest wel-come."

Hsiung Hsi-lin, former premier of China; Wang Ta Sieh, former minister of Foreign Affairs; Liang Chi-chao, former minister of Jus-tice and Finance; Chang I-lin and Yuan Lien, former ministers of Education, signed the cable-gram. They are leaders of the students' movement in China and ardent nationalists.

General Wood and Governor Forbes returned to Manila recent-ly from its first series of trips of investigation into the northern provinces, and it was while the commission was in Manila plan-ning a further itinerary of investi-gation that the invitation was extended.

Peking Will Help Chang In New Fight

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, June 6.—Everything is to be made as pleasant and com-fortable for General Chang Tso-lin, new High Inspector General of Mongolia, when he starts to re-claim Urga and add it to his new realm, it became known today. While General Chang is consider-ed the foremost military leader in China, now that he has made his power felt in Peking, the Central Government will see that his mili-tary task is no harder than neces-sary.

If General Chang can retake Urga and Outer Mongolia by hurl-ing an army of 25,000 men against Ungern and his 4,000 Russians, so much the better, the Government believes. In addition this plan would make for a better feeling between the Mongols and Chinese and normal conditions would be more quickly restored after the signing of peace.

Accordingly two official repre-sentatives are to be sent ahead of the military expedition, to pacify the Mongols and tell them that General Chang is gunning for Rus-sians and not for Mongols. The Mongols will be asked to aid the expedition when it advances into Outer Mongolia.

Ta Shou, Vice-President of the Board of Tibetan and Mongolian Affairs will go to Eastern Outer Mongolia on his peace mission and Lieutenant General Hsi Yu will go to the western part. Both will try to have the Mongols in a re-ceptive frame of mind before the expedition starts.

General Chang Tso-lin who has promised to lead the expedition in person and oust the Mongols, left Peking last night. His departure was unexpected and but few soldiers guarded the station, evidently to give the idea that a lesser man was leaving. His trip to Tientsin caused a delay in the passenger service from the city, it took the night express from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. to make the trip.

Asiatic Fleet To Have New Chaplain

Lieutenant Allison J. Hayes arrived yesterday with the American Destroyer flotilla, and has joined the Flagship U.S.S. Huron as chaplain of that ship. Chaplain Hayes will have general charge of welfare work for men of the Asiatic Fleet.

Prior to coming to the Asiatic Station Chaplain Hayes was engaged in special duties as Morale Officer at the Naval Prison at Portsmouth, New Hamp-shire. His work there was eminently successful and he comes to his new field with the highest recommendations of the Navy authorities of Portsmouth Navy Yard.

Chaplain Hayes is a native of Iowa and received his education at Hamline University and after graduation later received the degree of Master of Arts from Boston University. As an ordain-ed minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church Chaplain Hayes held pastorates in Minnesota, Maine and at the Portsmouth Navy Yard. After his appoint-ment as chaplain in the Navy Chaplain Hayes served as chaplain aboard U.S.S. Rhode Island and New Hampshire. During the recent war he served at the Naval Hospital at Fort Lynn, Colorado.

Besides the usual duties of a chaplain it may be stated that Chaplain Hayes has been engaged in work as Director of Red Cross work, Chairman of Liberty Loan Drives and of warwork com-mittees.

Chaplain Hayes is a forceful and sincere speaker. He has also had experience in Lyceum work as a lecturer.

It may be anticipated that Chaplain Hayes will receive a most cordial welcome from the men of the Navy as well as from the many friends of the boys in Shanghai. Chaplain Hayes may be assured of the cordial and hearty support of all who valued the much needed work of a chaplain on this Station.

Urges Inter-Empire Air Communication

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—Strong points in favor of inter-Empire air com-munications were made by Sir Frederick Sykes, Controller-Gen-eral of Civil Aviation, in a speech at a City banquet last night.

Sir Frederick said that the Gov-ernment was trying to put aviation on a commercial footing because it would tremendously advance inter-communication, especially within the Empire. Supremacy in the air, he said, would not be obtained by building up unproductive military fleets, but by expanding trade and facilitating travel. He expressed hope that commercial aviation would play as great a part in the country's prosperity as the Mer-cantile Marine had. They looked for assistance to the Dominions, who were untrammeled by the spirit of conservatism which is apt to retard the progress of Great Britain.

The strength of the British Em-pire, the Controller-General pro-ceeded, depends on good com-munications. Air transport, un-hampered by foreign frontiers, would give the Empire essential means of direct, supply and speedy inter-communication which ship and rail have hitherto shown to be vital.

Lauds Leaders Of Rubber Industry

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—At a dinner tendered the oversea delegates to the International Rubber Exhibi-tion at the Savoy Hotel, Sir Owen Phillips presiding, Sir Phillip Lloyd-Graeme, Director of Over-seas Trade, paid a tribute to the admirable spirit in which the rub-ber industry was meeting its difficulties.

Sir Stanley Bois said he was sure that the spirit of co-opera-tion would carry the industry through all its present difficulties.

Sun Yat-sen Invites Teachers To Canton

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, June 8.—In view of the disputes between the educa-tional party in Peking and the Northern Government, Dr. Sun Yat-sen has telegraphed to the party, inviting them to Canton, to continue their educational work.

It is reported that General Chen Chiung-ming has tendered his resignation as Minister of Military and Internal Affairs, and has declared that he will not be responsible for the affairs of these offices.

Moderates Win In South Africa

(Reuter's Service)

Capetown, June 9.—It is auth-oritatively stated that the Nation-alist leader, General Hertzog, will accompany General Smuts to the Constitutional Congress which is to be held in 1922. This decision is regarded as indicating that the moderate element in the Nation-alist Party has prevailed. While General Hertzog will naturally ad-vance the Nationalist standpoint, the decision to accompany General Smuts is regarded as most desir-able from all points of view.

BYE ELECTION

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—The follow-ing is the result of the bye-elec-tion at Heywood, occasioned by the elevation of Mr. Illingworth to the peerage:

Halls (Labor) ... 13,430 votes
England (Coalition Liberal) 13,125 votes
Picstone (Liberal) 5,671 votes

Majority, ... 305 votes

Heywood is the sixteenth seat that has been lost to the Govern-ment since the General Election in December 1918.

Mr. Halls, who is the organiser of the National Union of Railway-men at Nottingham, fought the bye-election on the Government's extravagance in post-war milit-ary adventures and the tragedy of Ireland.

The figures showed that many electors who had abstained from voting in 1918 voted now. Mr. Halls secured the Irish vote.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEFFA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"For several years I recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. PEBLER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Garbage Coolies On French Settlement Given A Warning

A challenge has been issued to the striking garbage coolies in the French Concession by the Municipal Council of the French Concession. The strikers are given until this morning to come back to their jobs, otherwise new coolies will be employed and the strikers will never be allowed to return.

The notice issued by the Council warned the coolies that on account of the strike, their usual rice allowance of $1 per month will be forfeited and the wages for the idle days will be deducted.

Several strikers who attempted to molest the work of the strike-breakers employed by the Council since Thursday were arrested and convicted in the French Mixed Court yesterday. Sentences varying from fines of $10 each to six months' imprisonment were handed down to the strikers.

3,750,000 Lack Jobs In Britain

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—The enormous extent of unemployment in Great Britain is revealed in the official figures for last week, which show that there were 3,750,000 out of work, including 1,600,000 miners and cotton operatives. All but a small number of the balance have applied for out of work donations. The foregoing figures do not include short-time workers, numbering over a million.

The only industries which show signs of withstanding the black spell are ship-building and boot manufacturing, but several industries expect a quick upward turn when the miners resume work.

It is generally anticipated that the miners delegate conference which is meeting today will adopt the Executive's recommendations to take a ballot in the coalfields on the owners' proposals, of which the Miners' Executive has now fully grasped the meaning. A favorable verdict is expected from the ballot.

Venizelos Fails To Get League Post

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, June 9.—In deference to the prevalent feeling that the appointment might be regarded as a political move, the position of Secretary-General of the General Federation of League of Nations Unions has not been given to M. Venizelos, as expected. Professor Ruyssen, of Bordeaux, has been elected, instead.

London, June 10.—The Committee on Amendments to the Covenant of the League of Nations has issued its report and recommendations. The most important amendment is an addition to Article 21, jointly proposed by China and Czecho-Slovakia, whereby the League of Nations would not only approve but also promote agreements tending to secure peace and encourage co-operation.

(Note: Article 21 of the League of Nations Covenant reads as follows:

"Nothing in this Covenant shall be deemed to effect the validity of international engagemen such as treaties of arbitration regional understandings like Monroe Doctrine, for securi the maintenance of peace.")

CLOSE FINISHES FEATURE OF OPENING PROGRAM AT KIANGWAN RACE MEETING

Glowing Sunset Gives Promise Of Fair Weather For Today's Events—Favorites Run To Form Despite Rain And Soft Track

Racing of the first quality with several dead heats and a number of spectacular finishes was afforded yesterday despite unsettled weather conditions at the opening program of the Dragon Boat Festival meeting at the Kiangwan track. After the intermittent rain that persisted through the afternoon the western clouds lifted and a flood of golden light poured over the race track from the setting sun just after the running of the final event. This was taken as a favorable omen for today's weather.

Though the track was soft and a number of the races were run with rain falling, surprises were almost entirely lacking. The single outstanding exception was delayed until the seventh race when Mr. Day's Commonland, ridden by Mr. A. N. Dallas, which had been the long favorite, lost a hard fought contest in the final stretch to Mrs. William McBain's Lightning Raider, ridden by Mr. G. G. Harper. Lightning Raider paid the largest dividend of the day, $111.70.

Two other fair sized dividends were on Lustero which finished second in the eighth race and paid $40.10, and on Sir John, second place pony in the ninth race. The payment on Sir John was $50.60.

The dead heats of the day were run in the second and third races. The second race was won by Sir Paul Chater's Sovereign Dahlia, ridden by Mr. C. R. Burkill. The Camel, with Mr. A. N. Dallas up, finished second and the Heron, ridden by Mr. William Hill, and Jason, ridden by Mr. J. C. Bauld, finished neck and neck in third place.

In the third race Oxus, ridden by Mr. Knoll, and Daybreak, ridden by Mr. A. V. White, ran a dead heat for second place. This race was won by Wild Escapade ridden by Mr. Springfield.

Premier place among the riders was taken by Mr. Knoll who placed in no less than six of the ten events, winning three with one second and two thirds.

CHANCES OPEN IN LAWN BOWLS CHAMPIONSHIPS

List Of Rinks Entered Makes Picking Of Winner Very Doubtful Proposition

BY "THE SHOT"

Next week will see the competitions for the open championships well under way. "Who's your fancy for the Rinks and Pairs"—this is the popular greeting one meets with on entering the club house, and I am going to say right now that the winners take a lot of spotting.

In the Rinks we have C. M. Bain's team who have won the event in 1919 and 1920. Albert Gavin Campbell did duty for the popular skip last year. Joe Buckley thinks they can win again but I'm not so sure they are able to beat their own club rink skipped by that dour woods-man MacDougall. At any rate he latter has great chance with Harborne as a Solia third.

Now what about the Recs, who have two rinks which certainly look "the goods." That skipped by Bob Bowerman, I am inclined to think will be the stable's fancy and they are going to take an immensity of beating.

At the same time Jack Shaw has a rink he can take anywhere and the betting would be evens they would win. A darned good sporty rink is entered from this club and I take off my hat to Tommy Main, Dicky, Torry and John Wade.

They journey down to Hongkew for their first round and if they manage to give Critchley's Pets the once over they will be quite content to rest on that performance.

The Juniors are sending out two excellent rinks and I'm rather inclined to think one of them will be the ultimate winners. At any rate this is the prevailing opinion one hears down Hongkew Park way.

Which of the two is the best is a moot point but I think I'd lay a slight shade of odds on the redoubtable John's gang. With Alec Braid leading, Tom spring second and G. B. S. third, believe me they are some stuff.

The news from Wayside Park is that Malcolm fears nought, not even the clan Aitkenhead, but we may depend upon it they are going to put up a good fight as they invariably do in this competition.

How we miss dear old Geordie—now if he was here he would spot the winners immediately—what I mean to say is that Geordie would bet a new Hat that his rink would whack anything in this town. Well, well, he'll be back this time next year and your scribe will be one of the first to welcome him. We'll speak about the Pairs next week. The Recs have an all day stunt on Sunday working of some of their club competitions and all interested are asked to make an effort to attend. Now for today's match

Shanghai Meets Huron Nine In Doubleheaded Bill Today

The baseball card for this afternoon at the Race Course includes one postponed grudge match between the nines of the Destroyers Lea and Hart, for an opener, and Shanghai opposing the Asiatic Fleet, in the third game of their long drawn out series of five for the second half. Play begins at 2:15 p.m.

The Destroyer men, when approached yesterday with a feeler as to whether or not they could put a team or two in the field to entertain the local fans just hopped at the chance. They have oodles of teams and all anxious to play, but this Lea vs. Hart game had to be played first.

The Lea nine, the Navy boys say, challenged the Hart team, or vice versa, the day before the flotilla sailed from Cavite for Shanghai and the pending game has been the chief topic of talk among the 1,500 gobs on the long, long trail from Manila to here. There will be some baseball shown at this match and some rooting such as only Gobs can pull.

The game Shanghai versus the Fleet promises to be a thriller. Shanghai simply must win it to stay in the five game series. Two games have already been won by the Navy men, and should they garb off today's match the series of five will be well nigh shot to pieces.

Lieutenant Johnson promises to have a battling team in the field today in spite of the fact that Weaver is half sick and Gage and others are being withdrawn to return to their regular stations at Cavite and elsewhere. The Huron has as much baseball talent on its payroll as Cy Wilhoit has on his, and Johnson can bring out an entirely new lineup and still play the local boys ragged.

Sunday will probably see Shanghai matched against either the team of the 13th or the 26th division, either of which the visitors say can give an account of itself in any company. It might even be that two Shanghai teams, the Regulars and the Fast Bolsheviki will take both these nines on for a doubleheader. It could not be announced last night exactly who would play on Sunday but the assurance was given that a good doubleheaded bill with strong teams at play would be arranged. The card for Sunday will be fixed up today and announced in tomorrow morning's paper.

Beginning Monday afternoon the Race Course diamond will be busy every day, with different Destroyer teams playing off among themselves, and against the Huron, the Wilmington and the Helena. These games will be played early, somewhere around two o'clock, so that the grass can cool off before five o'clock for the local prides to take their daily drill.

DOUBLE CRICKET PROGRAM SET FOR THIS AFTERNOON

S.C.C. "B" Eleven Plays Police On Home Grounds; S.V.C. vs Recs on Latter's Field

The Shanghai Cricket Club "B" team and the Shanghai Municipal Police eleven will meet in a cricket match this afternoon at the S.C.C. grounds beginning at 2 p.m., and the Machine Gun Company of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps will oppose the Recs at the latter's field in another game beginning at the same time.

The S.C.C. will put the following team against the police:

Dr. W. E. O'Hara (Captain), W. N. Hansell, H. E. Muriel, C. Brook, R. L. D. Wodehouse, R. J. Tippin, S. Vine, J. Robertson, L. Lienard, W. J. Monk and T. L. Rawsthorne. Reserves: D. F. A. Wallace, B. Lawrie-Smith and W. H. Smedley.

The Machine Gun Company which will play the Recs comprise the following players:

Sgt. Underwood, Cpl. Newman, L.-Cpl. White, Gnrs. Hayward (Captain), Leach, Duthoit, Piercy, Hammond, Hawkings, Middleton, Tomlinson. Reserves, Gnrs. Clements and Hawes.

BRITISH TENNIS

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—In the all-comers' singles lawn tennis championship at Beckenham, Kingscote beat Kleinman (from Singapore), 6-2, 6-2. Hunter and Shimidzu won their match in the third round of the men's doubles, as did Shimidzu and Miss Hawkins in the third round of the mixed doubles.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED

By Constipation. No matter how stubborn, it can be permanently overcome if treated in the right way. First, cleanse the intestinal canal by taking a small dose of Pinkettes, the tiny, gentle-as-nature laxatives. Then watch your diet. Fresh fruit, vegetables, a sufficiency of water consumed daily, and an occasional dose of Pinkettes when necessary, will do the rest. Pinkettes are laxative perfection, and a proved remedy for biliousness, sick headaches, liverishness, pimples, coated tongue and ill-smelling breath. Of chemists, or post free at 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 56, Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

AUSTRALIANS SCORE HEAVILY ON GLOUCESTERSHIRE

Compile 533 For Eight Wickets And Then Declare

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—The match between the Australians and Gloucestershire was continued at Bristol today in bright and warm weather, and in the presence of some 7,000 spectators. The Australians, whose first innings score stood at 421 for three wickets overnight, took good advantage of a perfect wicket, and, having compiled 533 for eight wickets, declared. The principal effort today was that of Gregory, who made 78 in delightful style, his hits including three sixes and seven fours.

The Gloucestershire first innings had yielded 166 for six wickets at close of play, D. Robinson being top scorer, with 61.

The match between Surrey and Northamptonshire at the Oval ended today in a win for the former by an inning and 341.

Much dissatisfaction is expressed at the decision of the Australians not to play on the day before the test matches open. The Australians have written to the Yorkshire County Club, asking for the elimination of the third day's play (viz. on July 22) in their match at Sheffield, in view of the fact that the fourth test match is to begin at Manchester on the 23rd.

The committee of the Sheffield United Football Club, on whose ground at Bramall Lane the match is to be decided, has decided to intimate to the Yorkshire Club that, if the tourists insist in their attitude, the club will request the county authorities to declare the match off, or arrange for it to be played elsewhere.

FOUR TEAM BASEBALL LEAGUE PLANNED FOR SUMMER SEASON

Three Nines of Civilian Players, And One Of Navy Men To Form A City League; Will Give All Local Talent Chance At Game

A four team baseball league is contemplated for Shanghai and the Baseball Club Committee and Manager J. H. Ross are to lay the plan before the players as soon as the possibilities are ascertained. The idea will be to encourage new material and allow more men to play. As outlined by President Fred S. McIntyre of the Baseball Club last night, there would be three and possibly four civilian teams and at least one sailor nine in the circuit with games Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday, doubleheaders being figured for the week end.

The step is one of the most important taken in local baseball in some years as it means that the "dub" will get a chance to play regularly, more men will be available for the "Shanghai" team and rivalry will be developed in the various camps.

The idea is to have four captains who are to be given a certain number of players—at least nine. The captains will then be allowed to add to their aggregations as long as they do not infringe on the personnel or premises of other teams. It will be the aim of the committee to divide the available material into teams of equal strength with Wilhoit, Bills, Maloney and Crow

Baseball League Now Under Way

as possible captains. These men will then fight it out for a pennant and there is even the acute possibility that the Baseball Club will offer some sort of a prize—or the winning team might be guests of the three losers at a dinner.

The league schedule would be arranged so that the best baseball possible will be offered local fandom. This does not mean that civilian teams will be seen in week-end doubleheaders when there are crack nines visiting Shanghai and there will be variety galore if the committee, manager and players get together and discuss the idea from every angle. The result will probably be three civilian nines and a sailor team in the Whangpoo League.

Three civilian teams can be arranged with little difficulty and at least one sailor nine is assured all Summer, with the Wilmington, Helena, Huron, one or two destroyers or the gunboats here. There will always be sufficient sailors in port to make up a good Navy team and with the league in full swing, the Navy will probably see to it that their well-known prestige is maintained.

One of the real kicks that players have had this spring is that they have not been able to play regularly. There were 24 men in uniform at last Sunday's game and four more eligibles were in the stands.

If these men are assigned to Maloney's Seals, Cy Wilhoit's Beavers or Brad Crow's Reds and know that they will play two games every week, they are going to be keen for the game. Material at present watching the game from the bench will get a chance to show what they can do and strength may be added to the so-called Shanghai team—which, by the way, could stand strengthening in one or two spots.

Now then the howl will be cut loose that there is not sufficient material for three civilian teams. Some contend that there is and that more is available which has yet been under cover because the men have received no encouragement. If an American played pretty good high school ball a few years ago and is a little timid about getting out for the team, seeing 16 or 17 men in uniform on the bench will hardly attract him to practice. But if he knows that he has a chance on one of three teams this young man from Ottumwa High School or St. John's Preparatory Academy is going to climb into a uniform.

At all events two crack civilian teams could be picked and two sailor nines are available. So there is your four-team league anyway.

Now as to the reaction from the stands. It will not be long before the Seals or the Beavers or the Warts or the Diamonds or whatever they are called will have distinct groups of followers in the stands. Rivalry will be developed, there will be greater interest in the game.

And most important of all, Americans in Shanghai will be playing baseball for the sake of playing and not for the sake of winning.

Many Injured In Osaka Strike Fight

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, June 10.—A serious collision between the striking employes of the Fujinagata Dockyard and the police resulted yesterday afternoon, when five hundred of the latter charged into a meeting of 2.000 strikers and demanded their dispersal.

The police knocked some of the strikers down, whereupon the entire mob set upon the police, using sticks, stones and fists. Many were injured on both sides.

Four of the strikers were arrested and taken to Sumiyoshi Jail. The crowd followed and demanded the release of the prisoners. The police refused and the crowd charged the jail, smashing windows and doing considerable other damage; but did not succeed in freeing their comrades.

The Yuikai is circularising the Fujinagata and other workers to fight to the last ditch. The situation is becoming more serious.

Filipino Educator Tells Of Benefits Derived From Islands' School System

Mr. Camilio Osias, Assistant Director Of Education, Points Out China's Needs; Promises To Work Against Objectionable Trade Regulation

Revitalisation of China's educational system, establishment of a public sanitation system and stabilisation of her financial system—these constitute the trinity of greatest needs for China.

This is the advice advanced by Mr. Camilio Osias, Assistant Director of Education of the Philippine Islands, who headed the Filipino delegation to the Far East Championship Games, in a lecture before three local organisations at the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce yesterday. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Chamber, the Kiangsu Educational Association and the Vocational Educational Association of China.

Mr. Ching Chen-ching, vice-president of the Chamber, presided in the absence of Mr. C. C. Nieh, the president, who was indisposed. Other speakers were Dr. Huang Yen-pei and Mr. Shen Hsin-ching, president and secretary of the Kiangsu Educational Association; Mr. Chang, representing the president of Nanyang College, and Mr. T. M. Yui.

After Mr. Ching had formally greeted the principal speaker on behalf of the organisations, Dr. Huang in introducing Mr. Osias, pointed out the excellent work being done by educators in the Philippine Islands. He told of the enthusiastic efforts of the local organisations to have Mr. Osias remain in China for an extra week following the championship games and how sanction was secured from Governor-General Harrison of the Philippines by the Civil Governor of the Province, Mr. Wang Hu.

Dr. Huang informed the audience that following the anxiety expressed by the Chinese officials and people over the proposed book-keeping law, Mr. Osias had agreed to convey to his own people and government the true sentiments of the Chinese towards the new legislation.

DISCUSSES INDEPENDENCE

Mr. Osias first discussed the question of Philippine independence, reaffirming emphatically that the people of the islands are as one for the immediate independence of the nation. He denied the press reports that the Filipino only wanted his independence in words but not in reality, because they were not ready for it. He told of his mission to the United States where he appeared before former President Wilson and the joint committee of the House and Senate, then headed by Mr. Harding, the present president.

"General Leonard Wood had personally told me that he was convinced that all Filipinos truly and sincerely desire independence. The only question, he said, is when and how!" said Mr. Osias.

Coming to the book-keeping bye-law, the speaker asserted that, lest he be misunderstood he wished to state that in Nanking, in the presence of the Military and Civil Governors and responsible Chinese, he told them frankly that while the power to revoke the law did not rest with him, it would be his pleasure to convey to his government the real sentiment of the Chinese people.

"In the Philippine Islands, the Chinese populace constitute an asset rather than a liability," Mr. Osias continued. "They are given equal educational rights with the natives. They control about 53 percent of the trade of the provinces as well as of Manila. In this light it is only natural to assume that the government would not do anything consciously or otherwise to offend a people from whom a great portion of the revenue is derived."

TOUCHES BANK MATTER

The speaker attributed the unfortunate experience of the local branch of the Philippine National Bank to circumstances beyond human control. From a bank capitalised with $5,000,000, it had grown to a capitalisation of $56,000,000 in six years—the biggest bank west of Chicago. He told his audience to be restored in their confidence, if it were shaken, for the sake of better commercial and international relationship.

The bank was the sole government depository, said Mr. Osias. The question of exchange fluctuation was a world problem and the only nation not affected by this was perhaps the United States. But the bank has not only government, but also popular backing. Even if a branch were ruined, it would not effect the institution itself.

"Now let me come to the role that education has played in the economic and commercial progress of the Philippine Islands," continued Mr. Osias. "Without boasting, the Bureau of Education is the most influential institution in the Philippine Islands. As a business enterprise it represents an investment of millions of dollars. It has at its disposal $30,000,000 yearly for expenditure. The number of teachers employed is 32,000 and the students affected is over a million."

IS BUSINESS ENTERPRISE

"We are not only engaged in a cultural piece of work, but we are also engaged in a business enterprise. The Agricultural School produced last year $4,000,000 worth of products. The provincial trade schools and shops turned out during the same period, $500,000 worth of products.

"For handcraft products we received orders amounting to $450,000 last year. Our bureau is run primarily for cultural purposes, but it is the financial achievement that has commended it to the serious consideration of the educational leaders of China."

Mr. Osias then pointed out the benefit derived from the system in the Philippines, which included the utilisation of the English language, the universal commercial language which fosters better commercial relation with other countries, the physical cultural development of the people, which is the greatest asset to a nation, and the actual capability of the natives to read and write.

"Seventy percent of the adults in the Philippines can read and write. Only 30 percent are illiterates. This is as good as one of the states. In Louisiana, the percentage of illiteracy is 29. It is better than any of the Republics in South America—better than the record of our forefathers, the Spaniards. This means improved commercial and international relationship, because, through education, we increase our business and commerce. With education come better homes, better clothing and bigger importations."

ISLANDS' BIG ASSET

After discussing in length the conditions in this province the speaker stated that the latest thought in vocational education is not only to train employes, but also employers—captains of industry—to push their businesses to a success. But this needs the full co-operation of the business men and the educators. The business men must be made to see that time and money spent by them for their employes is an asset to them because it helps the employes to increase production.

"To my mind, the greatest asset of the Philippine Islands is their passion for education, which is only equalled by their passion for independence. It may interest you to know that the first piece of legislation passed by the first purely Filipino assembly was of an educational nature. The sum of $30,000,000 was appropriated yearly for educational purpose besides the regular educational budget. With this legislation it is expected that by 1923 every Filipino child will have its educational opportunity."

Mr. Osias concluded with certain enlightening figures showing the lack of provision for education in China. In Kiangsu, where the population is 30,000,000, but $6,000,000 are spent. The amount per capita is 20 cents. In the Philippines, with a little over 10,000,000 people, the annual expenditure in this direction is $30,000,000, the per capita being $3, while in the United States, the sum of $28 is spent on every individual for education.

Mr. Osias was guest of honor at a banquet given by the three organisations last night at the Ningpo Association. He will leave for Hangchow this morning and sails on the Empress of Russia tomorrow.

At the banquet of the Ningpo Association, Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese delegate to the Versailles conference, welcomed Mr. Osias on behalf of the organisation while the guest of honor made an appropriate response. Mr. Francis Zia also spoke.

NAVAL APPOINTMENTS

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—New naval appointments include those of Rear-Admiral Edward B. Kiddle, to become Superintendent at Chatham; Rear-Admiral Maclachlan to command the Yangtse Patrol and Rear-Admiral Luce to become Superintendent at Malta.

Paris, June 9.—M. Denise, the Reporter of the Naval Committee, speaking in the Chamber, outlined the construction program for 1921-3. This consists of six light cruisers, 12 destroyers, 12 torpedo-boats, 36 submarines, and the conversion of the battleship Bearn into an aeroplane-carrier, at a total approximate cost of 1,416,000,000 francs. Parliament was at present, he said, asked to vote the credits for the 1921 instalment of the above program.

He pointed out France's inability to emulate Japanese, British and American naval development, and advocated the construction of battleships in consequence of the opinion of great foreign experts that they were too vulnerable to submarine attack.

London, June 9.—The prospects of a prolonged parliamentary session are increased by the Government's introduction of bills repealing the Agriculture Act and amending the Unemployment Insurance Act, as both measures are likely to prove very controversial.

Critics of the Government declare that the introduction of these measures was inspired by panic and in the hope of appeasing the "anti-wasters." The parlous condition of the country's finances is the theme of articles in the Opposition journals, including a letter from Sir Godfrey Collins, who recently crossed the floor of the House. The figures they quote include the following:

The revenue up to June 5, 1920, was £256,000,000 and up to June 4, 1921 only £155,000,000. The floating debt, as compared with last year, has increased by £61,500,000. Expenditure decreased only by £17,500,000 in two months, the revenue simultaneously decreasing by £100,750,000. The tendency of the floating debt to increase is regarded as a very serious factor, impeding national financial recovery. Critics are of opinion that the Government is so scared of the growth of the demand for economy that a general election this year is most unlikely, as the Prime Minister would preferably defer an appeal to the country until a more favorable occasion.

Napoleon

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

One hundred years ago, Napoleon died. Before and since, men have talked of Napoleon, his knowledge of war, the fact that modern fighters, as Foch says, go to him and learn. But the real Napoleon was not the mere winner of battles, dressed in velvet and ermine, taking the crown from the Pope to crown himself, dreaming of conquering Asia, like Alexander planning to ride on an elephant, in Oriental costume, and turn Mohammedan.

Napoleon was an Italian brain of the period of Benvenuto Cellini, put in cold storage on the Island of Corsica, and coming forth two centuries later, to astound and conquer men that had grown soft.

What he knew about fighting was a small part of Napoleon's knowledge. Military science, the easy task of conquering routine thinkers pitted against him, was nothing to such genius. Had he included benevolence, pity and love for weaker men among his qualities, he would stand out among the world's few great men. As it was, making kings ridiculous, tearing down old systems and old superstitions, he paved the way for modern democracy, such as it is, and the world owes to him one of its short cuts to better days.

Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon educated men by making them kill each other—painful process, but the only way, in the beginning.

Young men starting, old men puzzled by failure, may consider Napoleon's wisdom, a few samples are offered:

"Wake me up only when there is Bad news."

That was the order given to his secretary. Napoleon wasted no energy and knew the value of time and sleep.

"During the night enter my chamber as seldom as possible. Do not awake me when you have good news to communicate; with that there is no hurry. But When You Bring Bad News, Rouse Me Instantly, for then there is Not A Moment To Be Lost."

CONCENTRATE YOUR FORCES

That was his boiled down theory of war. He said, "The art of war consists in having always more forces than the enemy at the point where the enemy is attacked, or where he attacks."

Two clerks sit side by side, at the same job, competitors in life's struggle. One has all his thinking forces concentrated There. The other is divided between that spot and the afternoon's ball game. Prosaic comparison, but which will boss the other, ten years later?

Napoleon, cynical, looking down on men, said once: "I made my generals out of mud." But he was not as foolish as that sounds. He knew the value of a loyal helper, and said of his greatest marshal:

"I have two hundred millions in my coffers, and I would give them all for Ney."

Many a man has failed because he lacked appreciation of his good workers.

If you don't appreciate men, you don't get out of them what is in them. Napoleon pushed his men forward. Said that every man had a marshal's baton in his knapsack, because he wanted every man to do his best For Napoleon.

"There is a moment when the bravest troops feel inclined to run."

Napoleon, in every battle, watched for that moment in the opposing force, and guarded against it in his own.

Lack of confidence in Their Own Courage makes men cowards. Napoleon knew it and watched for the moment. You can imagine him, young, at his best, studying his own men and his enemy with cold genius. Said he:

"A moment of panic occurs, and that moment must be turned to advantage. When a man has been present in many actions he distinguishes that moment without difficulty.

"At Arcola, I won the battle with twenty-five horsemen. I seized that moment of lassitude, gave every man a trumpet, and gained the day with the handful."

If you can learn from Napoleon the lesson in that anecdote, you may be grateful.

Energy, System, Perseverance.

In three words you have Napoleon's theory of success. Young men that dream of genius and its "miracles" may learn from Napoleon what American young men, 90 in 100, do not know—that nothing counts, except hard work. These words of Napoleon's might be written on the wall of every school house, every place of business:

"There is no genius like the genius of labor. There is no reward like that which comes to Energy, System, Perseverance."

You may say that energy is inborn, cannot be commanded. Possibly. But system and perseverance are within the reach of every man, and the results that they alone will bring are apt to develop energy—which is born of enthusiasm.

Do you know any young man that wastes time, often asking: "What's the hurry?" Hand him this, from Napoleon. It will make shivers of ambition run through the body of any young man worth while:

"At Montebello I ordered Kellerman to attack with eight hundred horse. And with these he separated the six thousand Hungarian grenadiers before the very eyes of the Austrian cavalry.

"This cavalry was half a league off, and required a quarter of an hour to arrive on the field of action; and I have observed that it is always these quarters of an hour that decide the fate of a battle."

What wonders would Napoleon have accomplished in the late long drawn out war, with flying machines and automobiles as time savers?

It would have been a shorter war if the Napoleon of Montebello had managed it. Young gentlemen of the U. S. A., if you can learn now from Napoleon the value of "these quarters of an hour" you may be your own masters ten or twenty years from now, instead of pitying yourselves at the tail end of some one else's payroll.

Napoleon's wisdom condensed would fill all this newspaper; his letters, badly spelled, in poor French, are mines of wisdom, as his insatiable ambition is a monument to folly. The above samples, with one more, will do for this day.

You may learn from wise Napoleon why it is that great men, domineering, and little, modern whippersnappers, anxious to seem great, plan to curb newspapers. Napoleon, well knowing the effect of grandeur and omnipotence on men's little minds, said:

"I must dazzle and astonish. If I were to give the liberty of the press my power would not last three days."

He knew that he could not afford to let newspapers tell the truth, even about a Napoleon. No wonder the little creatures we put in office fear the truth about themselves.

We have at Washington an inclination to get away from the view of Jefferson, who said, "If I had my choice of newspapers without a government, or government without newspapers, I should select the former."

And, finally, for this instalment, Napoleon understood the value of advertising, even to the greatest of earth:

"A great reputation is a great noise; the more there is made the farther off it is heard. Laws, institutions, monuments, nations all fall; but the noise continues and resounds in after ages."

ATTENTION MISS McCORMICK

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: After reading Miss Elsie McCormick's article in THE CHINA PRESS regarding the general impression which some of the Shanghai civilians seem to have of the sailors in the United States Navy, and hearing many expressions of appreciation of same from practically every enlisted man on board the Huron, I am writing this letter of thanks to her, with the assurance that it conveys the heart-felt gratitude of the entire United States Navy in the Orient.

It must be remembered that we are Americans to the core or else we would not be wearing a uniform of distinction. Many of Shanghai's best citizens were former enlisted men of the U. S. Naval Service and, according to their own remarks, they would not hesitate a moment to discard their "civies" and blossom forth garbed in "gob's" clothes. That is if the worst was yet to come.

Thanking her again for her benevolence, I am,

Sincerely,
A SHIPMATE.

Shanghai, June 9, -

It's a good thing to see that the miners are pleased
With new offers the owners are making,
And soon all the mines by the men will be leased.
(They take all, but do none of the staking.)
But even a peace that's patched up will suffice
Before every industry's broken,
We don't mind the patch
As long as they catch
The idea to keep the seams open.

DEFINING THE OPTIMIST

The editor of the Topics of the Day Films sent the following examples of attempts of various people to define an optimist to London Opinion:

An optimist is a man who expects to raise vegetables like those pictured in the seed catalogues.

An optimist is a fellow who will go out riding in his motor-car without taking along an extra tyre.

An optimist is a "Johnny" who promises to buy a chorus girl a motor-car and expects her to choose a Ford.

An optimist is a man who, every time he sees a meal served in "the movies," picks his teeth and tips the attendant.

He must be an optimist who can continue to sing "Home Sweet Home" after the rent has been raised six times.

An optimist is a man who will buy hair restorer from a baldheaded barber.

An optimist is a man who can make lemonade out of the lemons that are handed him.

HOPE V. EVIDENCE

THE HONG HONG COOLER

With the hot weather coming on, and with the thirst that invariably accompanies it, the following recipe, culled from a London paper, might prove useful. It reminds one of home brew. Try it and I fancy the reply will be "All the same again."

It's a tea punch, and more cooling than any wine cup for dancers. Take one quart of Ceylon tea (made as you'd make it for five o'clock), the juice of six lemons and six oranges, three cloves, and a cup of crushed loaf sugar. When cold, add one wine glass sherry, one wine glassful of brandy, and ten minutes before serving drop in a few bits of ice, and twelve white seeded grapes. A gill of pineapple juice may be added if the flavor is liked.

IS YOUR NAME WOOD?

That the first who bore the name Wood dwelt near or adjacent to a wood there can be no reasonable doubt, for the name first appears as Atte-Wolde, which meant "at the wood."

Later the name became Attwood and in some cases this was changed to A Wood, which was later contracted to Wood. Sometimes it remained Atwood, a name that is still to be found in England. Another name that had much the same origin and that is still to be found occasionally is Bywood.

You may find, if you are so disposed, the love of nature, of the open, hunting and outdoor sports in general in the temperaments of those founders of the race of Wood, who chose to live in proximit to the woods. But the Woods have been dwellers of the city as well as of the forest, and in almost every calling you will find one of the Wood connection who has achieved distinction.

The New Russian Exile And The Old

BY NATALIE DE BOGORY

(New York Times)

American novelists no longer need to go abroad for local color on exiled Russian nobility. The Russian Prince is among us, more or less disguised as a plain American, and the Russian Countess parades as a simple—more than usually simple—shopgirl.

The day of European superiority as a domicile for Russian gentility passed with the World War. Before 1914 one had to go to Monte Carlo or the Paris boulevards to see real Russian noblemen on dress parade, although initiates knew where to find them in disguise among the revolutionists. But now New York can boast just as authentic, flourishing and picturesque a colony as any the special correspondents abroad tell about.

There is, however, one difference between the Russian emigre in Europe and in America: in Europe he tries everything and usually fails, in America he tries everything and quite often succeeds.

The war reminded Americans that there are many million Russians who know how to fight; the revolution showed that they could also think and that the nobility, along with many of the vices of the French of the Old Regime, had the redeeming virtue of knowing how to die. Now the never-ending stream of emigres fleeing from Russia is showing us that even titles often are borne by human beings who can struggle and suffer—and sometimes conquer. But there is one thing that America has yet to learn, and that is the Russian's deep-seated individualism—he will never do what seems the obvious thing; it is always the unusual, the picturesque.

It needs no heavy strain upon the intellect to remember New York in the days when to admit being a Russian was almost like advertising a gold brick for sale. If one confessed to being Ukrainian, one encountered a cold and biting politeness from the knowing and a blank stare from the general. It was rather annoying to some of us—Ukrainians.

Now times have changed. At every step one stumbles over a Russian thinking up some new scheme for the unfamiliar job of earning a living. Some who face the problem were social butterflies with several vocabularies of drawing-room languages; others were trained only as officers for a more or less ornamental military career; some had been Governors of States or cities, others had commanded armies—all without exception could never find a similiar position in America. Their knowledge of English was usually too academic to be of much practical service and yet—

There is an Admiral of the Russian navy, a middle-aged man of good family; with a grayish goatee, who decided that since there was no navy left, his seagoing talent could find application in operating a motion picture theater. He bought an emporium somewhere in the Bronx; it had a machine and seats, everything complete.

The Admiral's next step was to look around for a ticket chopper. A cavalry officer of a crack Guard regiment, who was in need of work, got the job. The officer was young and erect and knew just one word of English, "well," but in the Bronx perhaps he did not need any large English vocabulary. The Admiral sold tickets and pasted up with his own hands the lurid posters designed to tempt the populace inside. The venture held on for several months, and then it failed. Perhaps the patrons felt the lack of a powder puff at the ticket window. The Admiral has not yet found any new outlet for his talents.

Then there was a Count bearing a historic name who decided that since his two great accomplishments were languages and an intimate knowledge of wines, he could become a head waiter. He did become a head waiter in one of the big Broadway hotels, where he had spent many thousand dollars drinking the wines that he was now willing to serve—this was still before prohibition. The Count made an excellent waiter—he could open the bottles deftly, he had an air in his treatment of the guests, and once in a while, seeing some particularly attractive lady at a table, he would absent-mindedly and grandly present to her as a gift some specially choice brand. The patrons of the restaurant wondered, but as they had not heard of Russian emigres they just smiled and shrugged their shoulders.

A private banquet was being given one evening, and the Count was in charge of the wines. He was a little tired that day—he sometimes suffers from the effects of serious wounds received during the war—and in opening a bottle of champagne he accidentally spilled a little wine on a woman's dress. Her escort lacked the sixth sense. He punched the noble head waiter.

The head waiter turned to the guests.

"Will the ladies excuse me? This is a question of honor * * *" he said in lisping English.

Then and there he took off his evening coat, and, showing linen faultless in every detail, returned the guest's punch. The guest did his best, but it took several policemen to rescue him. The women at the table had been interested and questioned the victor. The truth came out.

"He's a real Count, my dear, just think of it * * *" ran the whisper.

Somebody started a collection and it is whispered that the purse was large. The Count was so magnificent in his shirt sleeves avenging his honor. Part of the money went toward the fine, which was all the Count suffered for the performance. The rest gave him the necessary sum to get to Paris—the goal of his desire.

Also there is a woman whose famous name keeps her prominently in mind for the Russian colony. Her father was internationally known as the millionaire owner of a big enterprise; he was well loved by some and equally well hated by others. She grew up in luxury—she owned a theater in Russia, in which she acted. She had cars and horses and jewels and dozens of servants. Her dinner parties were famous, so were her wines.

I met her not long ago when she was earning $15 a week as a sales-woman in a Fifth Avenue shop.

"When I sell these useless baubles to women in the store," she said, "I begin to see why there was a revolution in Russia. We were criminal. I never suspected misery and suffering before."

But that job did not last. From an $8 a week room she drifted to a dark sleeping hole, for which she paid $2.50 a week.

"I can live on one meal a day," she confided to me, "so I'm safe for a time."

She danced in a cheap Broadway cafe—but she could not stand the patrons. She tried to get back to the stage. But Broadway does not receive ragged exgreatness with hospitality, and she was ragged, though she still had a dozen beautiful Dreooll evening gowns. One Russian woman in New York tactfully gave her some clothes. A week later the gift was returned with a note:

"I cannot bear to be under obligation to anybody. Thank you for your kindness."

A theatrical company was finally organised for her and it opened on the road, but the play failed and the company came back to New York.

She is probably existing here now, this woman of a brilliant past, but nobody seems to have any trustworthy news of her. She may be dancing in some cafe where no friend will ever see her, paying for the extravagances of the past. A victim of the revolution!

There are successes as well as failures. And like all the things that Russians do, they are either very good or very bad—black or white. There seems to be little place for shaded pastel tones of mediocrity among these wanderers.

A General and his aristocratic wife have built up a really prosperous business handling women's garments. They had a hard time escaping from Bolshevist vengeance: they sold jewels to get out. And when they arrived in New York they faced the same blank wall that every other exiled Russian faces. But Madame was resourceful and the General was a soldier. She started up a business, and he, being a soldier, took his orders like a gentleman. Since packages had to be delivered, and there was no money to pay a boy, he delivered them. Many a woman must have received her spring hat from a tall, well built man,

OLD COMMANDERS' YARNS

(The late Admiral George Dewey, U.S.N.)

At Stockholm in 1885, King Oscar of Sweden came on board. He had been a naval officer and had the sailor's fondness for the Service.

While taking a glass of wine in the cabin and looking out on the gun-deck, he remarked:—

"This is the kind of Kingdom for a man to have. I would rather command a man-of-war than be King of any country in the world."

And turning to Comander Bridgeman, of the Kearsage, he said, "Would not you, Captain?"

The Commander answered, with a smile:—

"I have only tried the man-of-war, your Majesty!"

The New Russian Exile And The Old

without a suspicion that the male midinette with the flowered box was a General who had fought through the great war, a man of family, position and former wealth.

And what about the legion of less spectacular emigres—not Counts, Princesses or Generals, but men and women reared in the lap of luxury, women of dainty breeding, men accustomed to the valetage of a gentleman's gentleman, who are holding down and competing very successfully with native American and imported democratic talent? They translate, give lessons, take care of children, wait on table, carry bricks. An aviator did that for several months. His hands were so torn that they had to be bandaged every evening so that he could start again the next morning. But he worked. He is now earning several hundred dollars a week as an expert mechanic with an aviation firm.

One thing every Russian knows about America. It is that work is not despised and that here one may try anything. Those hard-drinking and fast-living officers of the old regime learn that first lesson quickly. They may fail, but they do try.

They are picturesque, these exiles, but generally no great idea is driving them forward, except the need of food and shelter. Most of them would have lived on quietly in Russia, spending their fortunes, enjoying themselves without a thought of the morrow, doing no special harm and no great good to anybody. Here in New York they work when they can, play cards during their leisure hours and speak hopefully of the fall of the Bolsheviki, though they know that the old times cannot really come back.

Most of them have never bothered about political theories. When the crash came they fled in bewildered disorder. They knew that because they were of the privileged class they were not safe. And here, living in the heart of New York, they are only waiting for the moment when Russia will open her arms to receive them back, and hoping it will be a Russia as much as possible like that of 1914.

What a difference between these exiles and those of years back, men and women of equal wealth, birth and breeding, who were driven from Russia as revolutionists and undesirables! I know the Russian exiles of today and I grew up among those other Russians, who lived so much together and who were yet so scattered through the capitals of Europe. Those old revolutionists did not come to America; for some curious reason they could not settle here at all. There was a hostility in the atmosphere which they could not overcome. Perhaps, also, it was too far away. Those exiles lived in London, Paris, Switzerland and in Bulgaria, drifting from country to country, always intent upon one thing—the liberation of Russia from the despotism of the Czar.

They were of the same nobility—dainty women and men accustomed to luxury. They, too, had grown up on great estates, spending their Winters in town, occupying homes that had belonged to their families for generations. Even their servants were hereditary.

But among these men and women a spark had started a fire. Their exile was full of purpose; their sacrifice and poverty were chosen; their labors were for others.

I know one woman who cut her hair and refused to wear low-necked ball gowns or to be driven everywhere in a carriage. Surreptitiously, she cut the usual train off her dress and actually dared to walk along the street. She announced that she would not make a "good" marriage, but wanted to become a doctor. So she left home and studied in Switzerland, starving though she earned a little by giving lessons. She was one of the emigres of my childhood.

She was an ardent Social-Revolutionist, the party which is now one of the chief enemies of Bolshevism in Russia. I remember the sensational way in which she started a riot at a Social-Democratic meeting at which the old leader, Plekhanoff, was speaking, by attacking him with an umbrella. Others joined in and the fight was ended only by the combined efforts of many Swiss gendarmes. And she was barely five feet one and could not have weighed much over 100 pounds.

This woman helped to distribute the illegal publications of the revolutionary organisation, and the political arguments between herself and her husband, after she married another well-known revolutionist, often lasted late into the night. Always opposed to the movement which finally produced Bolshevism, she returned to Russia after the revolution of 1905 and has been swallowed up.

I remember the printing headquarters of the Social-Revolutionists in Geneva, in a flat in one of the barrack-like apartment houses of Switzerland. The men lived and worked there. They were both revolutionists and we knew them by fictitious names, for they had escaped from Siberia. Whenever I went into the place they were working, bending over the type, and through the day tea would be made on a spirit lamp. We drank it with dry bread. The pair permitted themselves one simple meal a day. Many times, in the evening, the bright lamp in the composing room would be burning late while some one worked setting up the interminable lines. The only clothes those men had were what they had on their backs, and their soft black hats had to do for Summer as well as for Winter.

But they were torch bearers. They did not ask clothes or good food. Their delight was to gather in some home—often it was in the home of the small and short-haired woman—sing a few Russian folk songs and then talk about Russia and the revolution. Every one had his own plan for freeing Russia. The arguments waxed so loud at times that the placid Swiss were constantly complaining about the noise. The Swiss mind lacked the imagination to believe that the fate of a great country was being changed.
